What is a Teleseminar?

A Teleseminar, also known as a teleclass, is a live workshop/seminar linking you with other professionals around the world by telephone conference line. Teleseminars provide a very effective way to bridge distance and reduce costs. Teleseminars are conducted live, enabling the facilitator and participants to interact during the period of the call - which is usually between 1 – 1.5 hours. With Teleseminars, it is possible for you to participate in many of the mainstream Integration Coaching programs from the convenience and comfort of your home or office.

Benefits of the Teleseminar format include:

- Learning from home or your office, with immediate application – rather than having to wait until the end of an in-person workshop.
- Reduced Cost – Travel and accommodation costs are eliminated as you make the call from your home or office.
- Real-time Learning and Development of Networks with other professionals from around the world. – establishing long term relationships, different cultural viewpoints and professional contacts.
- Structured learning opportunities – Teleclasses are generally offered over a three to eight week period for one to one and a half hours per week. This format provides structured intensive interaction once a week with sufficient time between sessions for you to deepen your learning through weekly assignment.

When are teleseminars offered?

Teleseminars are offered regularly throughout the year. Please visit the teleseminar page for additional information.
